9 Factors that Influence Language Learning Whitby School

A final factor in language learning is the child's comfort in the current country of residence. Most children move to a new country because of a parent's job, not by choice. As a result, their motivation to learn a new language can depend on whether they're happy to be in a new place, or if they've come kicking and screaming. Luckily, even if a child is unhappy at first, their attitude can shift if they feel welcomed by their teachers and supported by their parents.
